Description

A late Georgian, second quarter 19th century, mahogany extending dining table. This large table has a solid mahogany top with rounded corners and moulded edge. It extends by way of telescopic bearer stretchers and two additional leaves can be removed and the table reduced in length. The leaves are all fitted with original and high quality flush integral brass clips. The table is supported by George IV type ring turned legs, on elegant and high quality gilt brass castors. High quality throughout. Oak secondary timbers, telescopic stretchers with double runners, gilt hardware. At just over 8 feet in length this table will comfortably seat 10 people. This is a pull-out table, and needs two people to extend it. Unlike the later Victorian dining tables which commonly had a wind out mechanism. A superb table, full of charm with the signs of use, still in very good working condition and well presented. Dimensions: This table measures approximately 73.5 cm (29") tall, 247 cm (96.5") wide fully extended, and 126.25 cm (49.75") wide with no additional leaves, 118.5 cm (46.75") deep. The addition leaves measure 61.25 cm (24") and 59.5 cm (23.5") wide. Condition: Please see th...
