Description

A handpainted porcelain tea caddy or ginger jar by Herend, Hungary, produced in the 20th century. Decorated in the distinctive "Siang Rouge" (Red Dynasty) pattern, with a deep rust-red ground and alternating white panels, each painted with stylized flowers and foliate scrolls in fine gilding. This pattern was developed as a tribute to the Japanese Imari and Chinese Qing dynasty porcelain of the 18th century, reflecting Herend's tradition of reinterpreting Far Eastern design for the European market.

The base bears the blue Herend shield, "HANDPAINTED" and factory numerals.
