Description

We have 16 of these industrial stools available dating from the 1930s . They have a solid cast iron tripod base and a richly patinated hardwood seat. The stool's height is adjusted via a central threaded rod, making it suitable for a variety of tasks , whether in a machinist's workshop, studio, or a coffee shop . The thick wooden top shows signs of age and use, developing a patina over the decades while the forged iron footrest ring adds both support and a sculptural element to the piece.
