Description

A rare John Pennington porcelain pickle dish formed as a leaf with stalk moulded looped handle, and moulded fluting around the edges. Stood on 3 conical feet. Painted in underglaze blue with a scene of a house up on top of a rocky cliff with fenced garden and three "cannonball" rocks in the water in front. The rim is painted in a feathered style. c.1780. Reference: see Liverpool Porcelain Of The Eighteenth Century by Watney, colour plate 31d for another example. It measures 13cm (5 1/8") wide by 12.7cm (5") long and 3.8cm (1 1/2") high. Condition is excellent: there is a small glaze frit/chip to the underside of the rim below the leaf tip. Some minor glaze losses at the rim and some light discolouration to the reverse. A short hairline in the glaze to the underside only and a short firing line also that can only be seen from underneath. No restoration and very minor handling wear.
