Description

Rare Edwardian Antique Country House Teak Garden Bench Seat This is a fabulous, large scale Edwardian English country house garden shaped solid teak garden bench seat, most probably a one-off design for a particular spot in the garden, maybe at the end of an avenue. An amazing survivor and a superb model featuring swan neck pediments to the top rails, lovely shapely central back rest splats with oval cut outs and matching straight back splats. Superb quality, made in one piece, this rare antique teak garden bench seat has a slatted teak shaped seat and stands on superb, shaped front legs which are an unusual shape and with splayed back legs. In superb, intact and complete condition, we have just replaced a couple of the back splats with identical teak woods which will silver down in colour quickly. A special English Edwardian antique country house garden seat that dates to 1900. Dimensions Height: 112cm (44.44") Width: 270cm (107.14") Depth: 147cm (58.33") Additional Info The seat height is 42cm.
