Description

A fine and charming oil on canvas landscape scene by the artist Lewis Charles Powles 1860-1942. The work depicts a sparse limestone landscape with patchy trees, a girl takes shelter against a rocky outcrop and is approached by a lamb wandering away from its mother. The painting is beautifully worked in a technique that is almost hazy but also very detailed, it gives the piece an almost ethereal feel. The painting is signed to the lower right and dated 1909. The artist Lewis Charles Powles was born in Cirencester, England, in 1860. His father was Rev. Henry C. Powles. Powles attended Oxford, where he studied Mathematics under Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, better known as Lewis Carroll. Powles had formal art studies under Hubert von Herkomer, followed by studies in Munich. He was elected a member of the Royal Society of British Artists in 1903 and also exhibited at every other major gallery. Lewis travelled extensively throughout Europe, as well as to Canada. His works are in the Bushey Museum and Art Gallery, the Ferens Art Gallery, the National Trust, Lamb House, the Royal Welch Fusiliers Regimental Museum, the Victoria & Albert Museum, and the Royal Collection Trust.
