Description

An Attractive Victorian Mahogany Teapoy a piece useful for a number of uses as the lid reveals good silked interior storage with three legs ending with brass lion paws and castors. A teapoy is a type of antique furniture, originally a small, three-legged table, often with a box attached for storing tea. The name comes from the Hindi term "tipai," meaning "three-footed" or "three-legged". Over time, the term has also come to refer to tables with tea caddies or compartments for tea service.
