Description

A stunning pair of early 20th century (circa 1930) Italian exhibition quality demi-lune side cabinets or commodes in the Neoclassical style by Pietro Ferrario. This superb pair of cabinets each consist of a demi-lune top with fine quality inlaid radiating fan decoration and inlaid borders of various exotic woods. This leads down to a carved edge with central drawer consisting of a finely inlaid oval escutcheon with fan design and diamond border with geometric decoration of various woods with inlaid foliate decoration and figures to either side. This leads down to a magnificently inlaid shaped door of superb craftsmanship consisting of a finely carved egg and dart moulding with Vitruvian scroll border of various woods with central marquetry lattice design of burr woods. The central eight sided panel (irregular octagon) with shaped and finely carved egg and dart moulding surrounding a superb quality marquetry panel, each cabinet with a different Classical scene, both with signature 'P. FERRARIO', each of the doors opening to reveal one shelf with storage space. To either side of the doors carved uprights with a shield to the top, with foliate carving with an urn below, ...
