Description

We are delighted to offer this magnificent antique Victorian enamel gold ring made c.1860-1880. This ring exudes a regal and majestic air with its deep royal blue enamelling that contrasts its surrounding antique gold setting, leaving a sumptuous and lasting impression. Its substantial size and weight give a wonderful feel in the hand and upon wearing. Upon closer inspection, the level of craftsmanship and intricacy can be fully appreciated. The oval curved surface has been decorated with a motif of blue enamel panels, half pearls and an old cut diamond in the centre. In between each section, an area of gold has been left and hand-engraved with a star - a testament to the fabulous quality and craftsmanship of the Victorian era. One can imagine the amount of time and labour that would have gone into making a single ring and is exemplary of a 'no costs cut' piece of jewellery. The ring's shank features a lovely floral and foliate decoration which has been further engraved and decorated. Such a combination of fine goldsmithing, enamelling and engraving makes for an exceptionally stylish choice for antique jewellery lovers. Remarkably, we have found it to also look wonde...
