Description

A unique and wonderful model of a fire surround in Welsh slate, made in three sections. The main central part is carved from a single piece. This may have been made by a quarryman as a chimneypiece ornament, or was possibly a retailer's sample, perhaps intended as a shop window display. It's in "as found" condition and would polish up if required. (A triangular section of the hearth is missing - this could be repaired, left as it is, or displayed without it. Most of the dowels are missing and it may have had small round feet.) Caernarfonshire, north Wales, circa 1850. Mantlepiece: Length: 40 cms; Width: 10.5 cms; Depth: 2.5 cms Main surround: Width: 30.5 cms; Height: 26.5 cms Depth: 7 cms max Hearth: Length (should be): 42 cms; Width: 13 cms; Depth: 2.5 cms.
