Description

A very attractive twin pedestal desk in oak that dates to 1910. It has a beautiful original waxed finish in a medium brown colour with brass handles and has working locks and key. Has a replacement antique brown and gold tooled leather insert which really complements the oak carcass. It has a brass plate with an inscription which shows it was gifted to Samuel Langford (1863 to 1927) a music critic and organist, in appreciation of his service for the church in West Didsbury Manchester. Measures 42 inches long, 30 inches high and 21 inches deep. A stunning piece of furniture that would grace a period or contemporary setting.
