Description

Mid C19th French carved gilt-wood console table of serpentine outline, in the C18th Louis XVI period style. Raised on shapely carved cabriole-type supports with a geometric carved and pierced frieze centred by a carved leaf motif above, the bottom edge with beaded or 'split-pearl' carved decoration. The base joined by a guilloche pattern carved inverted stretcher having a central carved classical urn with snake handles, flanked by carved floral details. The whole on shaped peg feet. The top of strikingly-figured rare 'breche violette' marble having a corresponding serpentine outline together with a moulded edge. This exceptional high quality marble top being 40 mm thick and perhaps originally from an earlier C18th table. The gilded table frame having been constructed in oak. In excellent original condition with no breaks or repairs. The gilded surface having achieved a pleasing mellow colour and patina. A highly decorative console table of practical scale and proportions. This elegant yet robust table is designed to be fixed in position to a wall in order to provide stability, especially when considering the need to support the heavy thick marble slab top and...
