Description

Absolutely beautiful Regency rosewood table cabinet dating from 1830 and inlaid with mother of pearl, all in stunning, original condition. It is 36cm across and 36cm high, and the two doors open to reveal 4 drawers, each inlaid and with a shaped mother of pearl knob. Inside each door is a leather panel which has a gilded edge and a central gilded cartouche, all in excellent order. Each side of the cabinet has a rosewood ring handle, both undamaged, and it stands on 4 beautifully shaped rosewood feet. A really important feature of this beautiful cabinet is, under the third drawer down the original owner has written the whole story about how the cabinet was made in 1830, and what it was purchased for. You can read this in the final picture. The drawers all have the best quality, hand-cut dovetails, and overall this is an absolutely stunning piece, of fine quality. It has been in the same family for many years, this is the first time on the market for decades. One final note, the beading that runs down between the doors has a slight break to it. I have left it as it is as it is completely original and untouched for almost 200 years, but I can have it repaired if you should d...
