Description

A fine George III mahogany tilt-top tripod table of excellent proportion, dating to circa 1770. The table features a superb one-piece circular top with beautiful figuring, supported on a finely turned pedestal with spiral carving and elegant tripod legs terminating in pad feet. The tilt-top mechanism allows the table to be easily folded when not in use, making it as practical as it is decorative. Perfect for use as a wine table, occasional table, or to display decorative pieces, this is a versatile and classic example of 18th-century English craftsmanship.
