Description

This is an exceptional brass inlaid rosewood library table, circa 1825, in excellent showroom condition. The richly figured rosewood top is decorated with fine brass string inlay and mother-of-pearl circles, finished all around so it can stand freely in the centre of a room. The front features two freize drawers, providing practical storage while preserving the elegant proportions. Standing on a central column with a quatreform base and casters, the table is both decorative and functional. A superb example of early 19th-century craftsmanship, ready to grace any home or collection. W 110cm (43.5") D 59cm (23.25") H 75.5cm (29.75") Floor to underside of table H 62cm (24.5")
