Description

A well-proportioned Edwardian era Arts & Crafts bedside cabinet, constructed in well-figured quarter-sawn oak with a rich golden colour. The top has a gently moulded edge and is finished with a low rear gallery, above a single panelled door, opening to a spacious interior, all standing on attractive tapering legs with gently flared, stylised feet. A modest but well-made honest piece, its slim proportions make it easy to place. It would suit a bedroom, bathroom or even a smart hallway where extra storage is needed. Presented in very good antique condition with only light age-related surface wear. Structurally solid, with a smooth-opening door, clean and ready to place in the home. English, c.1910.
