Description

Free delivery to mainland England and Wales, see below for details. This stunning and generously sized early wall mirror dates from the 1920s and features a beautifully crafted oval shape with a richly toned mahogany veneered wooden frame. The outer edge showcases delicately carved geometric flourishes, offering a sophisticated blend of craftsmanship and design. The glass is bevel-edged showing off a striking scalloped pattern, catching light with a soft glimmer that enhances its vintage allure. The mirror remains structurally sound with its original wood backboard and newer metal hanging brackets intact, making it easy to wall mount straight away or to reconfigure should you wish to display the other way. There is some minor wear and surface patina to the wood, consistent with age and careful use, which only add to its authenticity and timeworn charm. The glass remains clear with no foxing, cracks or chips, a testament to the quality materials used in its construction. This piece is perfect as a decorative focal point in an entrance hallway, above a console table, fireplace, or vanity. Its generous size also makes it a fantastic choice for a bedroom, bathroom, or r...
