Description

Antique Aesthetic Movement Display Cabinet An incredibly rare and wonderfully ornate cabinet in amazing original condition. This is a truly exquisite and authentic Victorian Aesthetic movement display cabinet, dating from around C1880. A prime example of the period's love for exotic woods and intricate decoration, it presents a striking contrast between the deep black of the ebonised wood and the rich, figured Amboyna burr veneer on the door. The entire piece is beautifully embellished with thin boxwood stringing, outlining the panels and the distinctive oval glass door. The carved filigree on the top cresting, capitals, and base is a standout feature, with its delicate scrollwork highlighted by gold relief, adding a touch of luxury. For a piece of this age, it is in remarkable condition, with all its original features intact. The original, hand-floated glass in the door retains the subtle waves and imperfections that authenticate its age. The original lock and key are in perfect working order, a rare find. The cabinet stands on its original polished brass castors with black porcelain wheels, which are still fully functional. Inside, the two shelves are also a point of...
