Description

Antique Georgian George III Hanging Wall Mirror. A superb example of a very rare Georgian Walnut Wall Mirror C1760. Crafted from a rich, warm-toned walnut, this is a truly authentic Georgian period hall mirror. The refined classical giltwood carving and graceful broken-arch pediment place it as a fine example of the mid-Georgian period, circa 1760—a golden age of English furniture design that spanned the reigns of King George II and George III. The mirror's silhouette is defined by an elegant broken-arch pediment at the top, complete with scrolling ears. The crest is adorned with a striking central motif depicting a gilt fretwork-carved detail with a plume of feather like acanthus leaves. The frame is a testament to its original craftsmanship, retaining its original wax-polished finish and a wonderful patina that has developed over time. A finely carved and gilded moulding runs along the inner edge of the glass, complementing the mirror's original plate. The glass itself features the characteristic "foxing" that collectors admire as a true mark of age. Below the mirror plate, a single piece of book-matched walnut veneer showcases the wood's beautiful grain. The lower sec...
