Description

A fine Victorian Davenport desk dating from the mid-19th century, c.1860. Crafted in walnut with delicate inlay decoration, the piece features the classic sloped writing surface with an inset leather top, opening to reveal compartments for stationery and writing accessories. The right-hand side is fitted with four working drawers, while the left-hand side has corresponding dummy drawers for symmetry. Raised on a sturdy base with decorative supports, this Davenport combines practicality with refined Victorian elegance. The desk is offered in very good antique condition, with a warm patina and minor wear consistent with age. The leather top remains original with natural character. A distinguished piece of Victorian craftsmanship, ready to be placed and enjoyed in a study, office or eclectic interior.
