Description

No: 11184 Royal Stag, Hind and Fawn in a Highland landscape A stunning original oil on canvas painting signed by Robert Cleminson, in its original carved, gilt frame. Robert Cleminson was a painter in oils of landscapes, Highland game and sporting dog pictures and it his animal and dog paintings for which he is best known. He was a follower of Sir Edwin Landseer (1802-1873) and this painting of a Royal stag, hind and fawn is derivative of Landseer's original Monarch of the Glen oil painting. Landseer was Queen Victoria's most admired artist. Cleminson was such a good artist that one can almost feel the heat emanating from the Stag's nostrils. His attention to detail is superb and if one looks carefully he has included details such as the birds on the wing and the snow caps on the mountains. His treatment of both the grass and heather to give the picture that slightly purple Highland feel is apparent. Dated 1871 and signed lower left corner Price :£ 5,000 Inc Frame: Height: 56 ¼", (143cm), Width: 46 ½", (118 cm), Depth: 2 ¾", (7cm). Note: Taken from the National Gallery write up on Landseer's Monarch of the Glen: "Landseer's greatest enjoyment was to wander in th...
