Description

An exquisite Edwardian satinwood display cabinet, distinguished by its refined boxwood and delicate string inlay decoration. The upper glazed doors open to a fabric-lined interior with three shelves, while the glazed sides and front allow natural light to illuminate the contents beautifully. Beneath, a pair of veneered cupboard doors are set above an open shelf, all elevated on slender, tapering legs. As with all antiques, minor imperfections are part of its story. Nonetheless, this is a well-built cabinet with excellent proportions—an adaptable piece that would complement any home.
