Description

Impressive Edwardian mahogany breakfront bookcase presented in excellent antique condition, complete with its original working key. Designed with practicality in mind, the piece dismantles into five sections for ease of transport and placement within the home. The upper section features astragal-glazed doors that open to reveal fully adjustable mahogany shelves—perfect for displaying books or decorative objects. Below, four panelled doors are adorned with elegant boxwood and string inlay, adding refined detail to the cabinet's classical form. The central double doors and flanking side doors each open to shelved interiors, offering generous concealed storage. While bearing the gentle signs of age typical of antique furniture, this robust and beautifully proportioned bookcase boasts a rich patina and striking grain—a testament to its craftsmanship and enduring appeal. A commanding yet versatile piece, ideal for both traditional and contemporary interiors.
