Description

19th century oak pot board dresser base This early 19th century oak pot board dresser base is a fine example of traditional English country furniture, crafted around 1820. Made from solid oak with a rich, warm patina, this dresser base features three deep drawers fitted with brass plate handles and a shaped apron, all raised above a pot board supported by turned legs. Its lower shelf offers practical storage, once used for kitchen pots and utensils, making it both functional and decorative. Perfect for collectors of antique oak furniture or as a statement piece in a farmhouse-style interior, this dresser base combines rustic charm with enduring quality. "There is scarcely anything in the world that some man cannot make a little worse and sell a little more cheaply. The person who buys on price alone is this man's lawful prey."
