A rare campaign, faux bamboo, folding wash stand. Made in the late 19th early 20th C, likely used during the Boer War. The legs are carved to look like bamboo and can easily fold for transportation. The three top ends, still shows the original brass tips which would have held a bowl or a jug. The circular top of this travelling stand presents the expected signs of use with worn paint in places. A very light, functional and versatile piece of furniture.

Dimensions: Circa 82cm to the top of the points as shown in the images. 26cm diameter of the circular top of the stand
