Description

A fine set of four antique oak dining chairs dating from the late 19th century. These attractive chairs feature solid oak frames with elegant barley twist front legs and uprights, paired with slatted backs and ball finials to the crest rails. The seats are traditionally upholstered in a period-style material, offering comfort while retaining an authentic antique look. Their craftsmanship and decorative details make them a versatile addition to both dining and occasional settings. In very good antique condition, sturdy and ready for immediate use. Minor age-related wear consistent with their age, enhancing their character. Seat Height – 45 cm A charming and decorative set of dining chairs – perfect for adding warmth and character to any traditional interior.
