Description

This Jaeger-LeCoultre wristwatch, dating from around 1960, embodies the maison's understated elegance and technical mastery. Its 33mm gold-plated case features refined proportions, housing a cream dial with gold-plated baton hour markers and dauphine hands – a timeless design that speaks to classic mid-century styling. Inside beats the Jaeger-LeCoultre caliber K800/CW manual-wind movement, admired for its reliability and refined craftsmanship. Paired with a black leather strap and secured by a gold-plated pin buckle, the watch balances everyday sophistication with vintage charm. Please note: due to age, this timepiece is not considered water-resistant. A sophisticated vintage dress watch from one of Switzerland's most prestigious watchmakers, this Jaeger-LeCoultre offers both horological pedigree and enduring style.
