Description

This 1950s Girard-Perregaux wristwatch captures the refined elegance of the Art Deco style with its distinctive rectangular case crafted from solid 14ct yellow gold. The clean lines, warm gold tone, and minimalist dial with gilt accents exemplify the sophistication of mid-century Swiss design. At its heart beats a reliable manual-wind movement, showcasing Girard-Perregaux's longstanding reputation for horological precision. The watch is fitted to an unsigned black leather strap, secured with a gold-plated pin buckle, which complements the case's understated yet distinguished style. Please note: due to age, this vintage timepiece is not water-resistant. A true collector's piece, this watch blends Art Deco aesthetics with timeless horological heritage, making it an excellent addition to any vintage collection.
