Description

A refined late Victorian writing table in solid mahogany, featuring a clean, well figured rectangular top over two frieze drawers with attractive original pressed brass drop handles, all raised on ring turned legs terminating in brass and ceramic castors. A generous and practical writing table, offering plenty of surface area while retaining a light visual presence. The drawers are notably well made and run smoothly, with the decorative brass handles giving a touch of formality and period charm. Presented in very good antique condition with a warm, even patina and only minor surface wear consistent with age. Structurally solid, clean, and ready to place in the home. English, circa 1880. H: 76 W: 121 D: 57.5 cm Height to underside of table 61 cm
