Description

A quality late Victorian oak piano stool with a finely upholstered hinged seat opening to a sizeable storage compartment, all flanked by beautifully turned raised handles to each side. The stool stands on particularly attractive tapering ring-turned legs. The seat is upholstered in a later deep blue fabric finished with decorative braid. Practical as well as decorative, it shows robust oak construction with traditional late Victorian detailing. Equally suited to its original purpose as a piano stool, as an occasional seat in the home or for use at a dressing table. Presented in very good antique condition with a warm patina and minor surface wear consistent with age. The upholstery is perfectly clean and in good order. Structurally all solid and ready to place in the home. English, circa 1890. H: 56 W: 56 D: 34 cm Seat height: 49 cm
