Description

A charming set of six antique Victorian oak dining chairs, dating from around 1880. Each chair features a solid oak seat, turned front legs, and a shaped back support with a decorative central stretcher, adding both style and stability. These chairs display visible signs of age and use, which only enhance their authentic antique character. Strong, sturdy, and full of rustic charm, they are ideal for a farmhouse kitchen, dining room, or traditional interior. A rare opportunity to acquire a full matching set with plenty of character. Seat Height: 45 cm Overall, this set is in good antique condition, with the natural wear that comes with over 100 years of history.
