Description

A late 18th-century Welsh oak pot-board dairy dresser, sourced from its original setting in a Georgian house in West Wales. The piece has a tall boarded rack fitted with iron hooks, above a base with two drawers, brass swan-neck handles, and a shaped apron. The pot-board is supported by square legs with chamfered detailing. Professionally restored a few years ago, it retains a rich patina and comes in a smaller, practical size that separates into two parts for ease of movement.
