Description

An 18th C. Oak Dresser. This lovely Oak Dresser is unique being that the base was originally a coffer, and the plate rack, which dates from the same period has been added. The top section has 3 shelves, each having hooks. The base has two small drawers with cupboards either side and it also has some carved decoration in between the drawers and cupboards. With a shaped skirt and standing on chunky square legs. This practical piece of country furniture has a beautiful patina and original brass fittings to the base. With wear and tear conducive with age and use and bearing scars from ancient woodworm to the back of the base. The plate rack will require being secured to the wall.
