Description

A beautiful antique Singer sewing machine, serial number Y1794636, manufactured in 1921 at the Clydebank factory in Scotland. This classic Singer model is finished in glossy black enamel with ornate gold detailing, set on a sturdy wooden base with its original domed oak case and key. Renowned for their durability and craftsmanship, these early Singer machines are still highly collectible today – perfect as a working piece (with servicing) or as a decorative display item for a vintage interior or sewing enthusiast. Height (with case): 31 cm The machine is in good antique condition with some signs of age and use consistent with its history. A charming example of early 20th-century engineering.
