Description

A fine set of four Edwardian dining chairs dating from around 1910. Crafted from solid oak, each chair features a stylish vertical-slat back and turned front legs, showcasing the elegant simplicity typical of the Edwardian period. The original deep red leather seats add a bold touch of character and patina, offering both comfort and charm. A timeless set that would suit a traditional dining room, cottage interior, or period-inspired kitchen. Seat height: 44 cm. All chairs are sturdy and in very good antique condition, showing minor signs of age consistent with years of careful use.
