Description

A fine Edwardian occasional table dating from around 1910, featuring an elegant six-sided (hexagonal) top and beautifully turned legs joined by a lower tier with delicate spindle gallery. Crafted from solid mahogany, this piece stands on its original brass castors, offering both charm and practicality. The craftsmanship and balanced proportions make it a perfect accent table for a sitting room, hallway, or conservatory. Excellent overall condition – structurally solid with a rich, polished surface and only minimal age-related marks consistent with careful use.
