Description

A beautifully crafted vintage mahogany drop leaf table, dating from the 1930s, featuring a traditional gateleg design with two hinged leaves that fold neatly down when not in use. The table stands on elegant straight legs with pierced corner brackets, typical of mid-20th-century craftsmanship. Made from solid mahogany with a warm, polished finish that highlights the natural grain of the wood. This versatile piece is ideal as a kitchen, breakfast, or occasional table, offering both charm and practicality — easily seating up to four people when extended. Width (extended): 136 cm. Excellent vintage condition — sturdy, with minor marks consistent with age and use. The leaves fold and open smoothly.
