Description

An elegant Georgian mahogany drop leaf table, dating from around 1820, featuring a beautifully figured top with two hinged leaves and a central single drawer with turned wooden knobs. This classic piece stands on finely turned legs, typical of early 19th-century craftsmanship. The rich mahogany tone and graceful proportions make it a versatile addition to both period and modern interiors — ideal as a kitchen, occasional, or side table. Width (extended): 104 cm. Excellent antique condition. Solid and sturdy, with only light surface wear consistent with age and use. Drawer runs smoothly.
