Description

A Gorgeous Antique Japanese Imari Porcelain Covered Jar / Ginger Jar richly decorated in the classic palette of iron red and cobalt blue on a white ground. The design features a vibrant scene of blossoming cherry branches with stylised floral panels and geometric borders - a beautiful example of traditional Imari ware artistry from the Meiji period (circa 1890–1910). The jar's domed lid with a pointed knob finial mirrors the body's decorative motifs, completing its balanced and elegant form. A timeless piece of Japanese porcelain that brings both beauty and heritage to any interior – circa 1880. Measurements: Height: 11" (approx. 28cm) Diameter: 6" (approx. 15cm) Total weight: 1223g In good condition – No cracks or repairs. Minor glaze crazing to interior and light surface wear consistent with age. Lid fits securely with natural kiln firing variations typical of handmade Imari pieces.
