Description

An antique Victorian oak bookcase, late 19th century, with a glazed top and four-door configuration. The upper section features twin glazed doors with three interior shelves, designed to display books or decorative pieces. Beneath, two drawers with brass handles sit above a pair of panelled cupboard doors, decorated with carved gothic-style tracery. The warm oak finish and stepped cornice highlight the cabinet's craftsmanship, while the lower storage provides practicality. A fine example of Victorian furniture, balancing display and storage within a tall, elegant form.
