Description

Presenting an elegant marble bust of a lady, masterfully sculpted by Rob Physick in 1868. This timeless piece captures the grace and refinement of Victorian neoclassical artistry, with exquisite attention to facial expression, delicate drapery, and lifelike detail that exemplifies Physick's sculptural finesse. The bust is mounted on a striking black and white veined marble column, which perfectly complements the soft tones of the sculpture and enhances its commanding presence. Standing together, the pair form a stunning focal point—ideal for a grand hallway, library, or fine art collection.
