Description

This is an antique gentleman's sporrان chest. A Scottish, mahogany collector's cabinet, dating to the early Victorian period, circa 1850. Of graceful proportion and appealing colour, this chest offers both practicality and refined character, being ideal for a gentleman's dressing room or collector's display. Displays a charming Victorian elegance, suitable for the refined interior. Handcrafted from select mahogany stocks showing fine grain interest throughout. Boasts a rich caramel tone and smooth, wax-polished finish enhancing the natural patina. Comprising five drawers, each fitted with inset brass locks — untested, key absent. Drawer fronts adorned with pairs of brass recessed cup handles. Each drawer sliding smoothly - ideal for jewellery, curios, or gentleman's accessories. Chamfered corners gently soften the chest's form, lending a tactile quality. Raised upon a continuous plinth base, ensuring stability and presence. A most attractive example of early Victorian storage furniture, this mahogany sporrان chest presents a superb combination of form and function. Rich in tone and craftsmanship, it will bring a touch of 19th century sophistication to any setting. Solid joints...
