Description

This is an antique Beefeater fireside companion. An English, cast iron fireplace figure dating to the Edwardian period, circa 1910. Rich in character and superbly detailed, this piece brings both function and historic charm to the traditional hearth – a fine display of early 20th century craftsmanship. A wonderfully figural fireplace companion from Edwardian England Presents a Beefeater in full ceremonial dress, confidently posed with raised staff. Crafted in quality cast iron with excellent figural definition and crisp detailing throughout. Displays a lightly aged patina, offering warm depth and period authenticity. Stands with good balance and pleasing heft, weighing approximately 10.075kg (22.2 lb). The Beefeater's silvered brass staff cleverly conceals a fire poker, blending artistry and practicality. The poker sits upon a plinth styled as the Tower of London, beautifully echoing the figure's heritage. To the reverse, a pair of fire tongs and a hearth brush hang neatly within a fitted recess. Fine heraldic motif and textured costume elements showcase the quality of the casting. Displays intricate attention to buttons, ruff, and weaponry for a realistic and engaging presence ...
