Description

A fine Gothic Revival carved oak stand (English, late 19th century). The design is richly detailed with tracery panels, figural corner carvings, and architectural motifs inspired by medieval cathedrals. Crafted from solid oak with a deep, warm patina, it features an open display compartment above a lower shelf — ideal for books, bronzes, or curios. A superb example of late Victorian Gothic taste, showcasing exceptional hand carving and proportion.

Highlights • England, Gothic Revival period, c.1880–1900 • Solid oak with finely carved tracery and figures • Architectural side panels and pierced fretwork aprons • Rich, warm colour and pleasing patina • Upper and lower tiers for display or storage • Robust and decorative; ready to place Height: 132 cm Width: 48 cm Depth: 48 cm

Styling & Placement An eye-catching accent in a hallway, library, or drawing room. Perfect for displaying bronzes, porcelain, or books — or as a lamp or plant stand in a characterful interior. Complements both period and modern spaces with its sculptural Gothic form and rich, historical charm.
