Description

A fine antique satinwood painted bureau bookcase (English, Adam Revival, c.1890). The upper section with twin astragal-glazed doors enclosing glass shelves, above a fall-front bureau finely painted with floral swags, ribbons, and a central urn of flowers. The interior fitted with pigeonholes and small drawers over three long drawers, each similarly decorated with hand-painted garlands and neoclassical motifs. Beautifully executed in satinwood with delicate painted detailing in the manner of Thomas Sheraton, standing on shaped bracket feet. Elegant, refined, and quintessentially late Victorian in interpretation of the Georgian aesthetic. Highlights • England, Adam / Sheraton Revival, c.1890 • Satinwood with original hand-painted floral and ribbon decoration • Astragal-glazed upper doors with interior shelves • Fall-front bureau with fitted interior • Three long drawers with brass handles • Superb colour and rich patina; fine condition throughout • Elegant proportions; ready to place Height: 192 cm Width: 76 cm Depth: 48 cm Styling & Placement An exceptional statement piece for a drawing room, study, or entrance hall. Perfect as both a writing bureau and display cab...
