Description

A fine Regency period mahogany bow-fronted chest of drawers with two short drawers over three long. Each drawer has a smooth open/close action and features turned wooden knobs and brass lock escutcheons, and all have ebony stringing to the outer edges. The main body is flanked with stylish reeded column decoration and is raised on turned supports. The overall condition is very good, with age-related wear and tear, mostly being light marks to the top surface. Please see images for further detail.
