Description

A beautifully carved neoclassical-style X-frame stool, dating from around the early 20th century. Crafted from solid oak, this elegant piece showcases exquisite hand-carved details — from acanthus leaf motifs to fluted legs and scrolling armrests — all typical of refined neoclassical design. The seat is upholstered in a rich red damask fabric, adding a touch of opulence and warmth. Its elegant cross-frame construction provides both visual balance and solid stability, making it a perfect accent for a hallway, dressing room, or living area. Seat height: 30 cm Very good antique condition. Solid and sturdy with light, age-appropriate wear to the wood and upholstery. Beautiful original patina enhancing the carved details.
