Description

Finely cast pair of gilt bronze stands in the Rococo Revival style, dating from the late Victorian period. The bases are richly decorated with scrolling acanthus, shell motifs, and roccaille forms, reflecting the opulent French-inspired taste of the era. Originally conceived as candlesticks, they were later adapted for use as lamps. The wiring was introduced in the early 20th century, with the current electrical fittings added post-1950s. The casting is of excellent quality, with a warm, time-aged gilt finish.
