Description

A charming small mahogany countertop display cabinet, dating from the early 20th century. Beautifully constructed with a solid mahogany frame and single glazed panels on all sides, including the top, allowing for excellent visibility of displayed items. The cabinet opens at the rear via a hinged door with a brass knob. Originally used in a apothecary's shop to display medicines or fine goods. Perfect for showcasing small collectables, jewellery, or curios in a home or retail setting. We currently have two available (sold separately), each slightly different, but clearly made as a matching pair.
