Description

A stylish and well-proportioned 19th-century mahogany bookcase featuring a large glazed top section with unusual glazing bars, three internal shelves, and including a lock and key. Below this are two drawers and a double-door cupboard with a single full-width shelf. Finished on bun feet. The overall condition is excellent, with light age-related wear and tear. Additionally we have noted two small areas where the veneer has been replaced at some point in time, which adds to the individual character of this wonderful piece. See images for details.
